Market and Portfolio Update

Q4 rounded off a strong year for portfolio performance, with our decision to underweight US assets (Treasuries and dollar as well as equities) paying off well. Gold linked holdings clearly led the way, but we saw relative gains also made from active funds picks (such as Artemis UK Select and Lightman European), direct stocks (Barclays and Tesco) and a recovery in alternative assets (iShares Property ETF and Target Healthcare).

The year will be remembered for the gameshow style unveiling of tariffs in April, and while market volatility ensued in the immediate aftermath, pauses and dilutions helped calm investor worries and led the market to record highs.

Looking ahead to this year, we will be keeping our underweight position to the US, where near term risks are still prevalent, with Jerome Powell under attack from Trump's justice department and the supreme court set to announce their decision on the legality of the tariffs. We will be keeping a close eye on the latter in particular. Domestically, forecasts suggest the 'terminal' rate for interest rates is 3%, but some think it could be lower. This encourages us to continue investing in UK companies with good cashflow which permits both solid dividends and share buybacks and should continue to provide outcomes. We expect corporate activity to bolster small companies if they do not benefit from this trend.

Performance Since Inception

Performance figures were calculated on a monthly basis net of Charlotte Square Investment Managers management fee of 0.25%, and net of ongoing costs of funds (OCF). Performance of individual portfolios may vary due to factors such as the portfolio size and timing of investment transactions.

Performance has been calculated since close of business 31st August 2022, at which point tracking of our Moderately Conservative portfolio began.
